GENERAL INFORMATION

What are cookies

A cookie is a text file that a website visited by the user sends to his terminal (computer, mobile device such as smartphones or tablets), where it is stored and then transmitted to that site on a subsequent visit to the same site.

Cookies are distinguished

- on the basis of the subject who installs them, depending on whether it is the same manager of the site visited (so-called "first party cookies") or a different subject (so-called "third party cookies");
- according to the purpose of each cookie: some cookies allow better navigation, storing some of the user's choices, such as language (so-called "technical cookies"), other cookies allow monitoring the user's navigation also in order to send advertising and/or offer services in line with his/her preferences (so-called "profiling cookies").

Only profiling cookies require the prior consent of the user to their use.

The Data Controller is only responsible for first party cookies installed on the Site.

In the section "First party technical cookies" you can view the types of first party technical cookies set by the Site.

The management of profiling cookies is described in the section "Third party profiling cookies", where present.
